Want to avoid the most common hand and wrist video game injuries caused by hours of nonstop gaming?

Dr. Levi Harrison, a.k.a. “The Gamer’s Doctor” has you covered. In a new interview for The Denver Post’s marijuana site, The Cannabist, he discusses common maladies and offers tips for preventing injury, as well as cannabis and its effects on the body, and why gamers get so little respect among his peers in the medical establishment.

It’s part of The Cannabist’s High Scores column, which looks at different angles of the relationship between marijuana and gaming. Other recent High Scores entries tackle gaming, weed and religion and how cannabis can change the meaning of games.
